

I feel compelled to comment on the wonderful merits of Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law. Since we have been on the do not call list we are not afraid to answer our phone any more, we do not feel like we need caller id ($ savings for us), and our family is thrilled to be able and enjoy a wonderful dinner together without the constant interruption that we previously experienced. I see no reason for eliminating this terrific benefit to those of us who live in Indiana. I do believe that each bank has an "opt in" program where customers are able to choose if they would like to be contacted for various promotions. Why can't it stay this way? There are other ways to reach potential customers that are not as intrusive. Thanks for listening.
